Some Things You Should Know About Retaining an Attorney

German lawyers are not as active in court as U.S. lawyers, due to the prominent role of the presiding judge. Your defense counsel should, however, argue your case for you and try to convince the court to interpret the facts and apply the law in a manner favorable to you. Your German attorney is your primary source of advice. Ask him/her any questions you have about the case and listen carefully to the advice you receive, for he/she is trained in German criminal law and has the duty to defend you to the best of his/her ability.

Attorney Fees

☞ Legal services will be at your own expense.

If you have no funds, see the section on Pflichtverteidiger* (court-appointed attorney) below.

The State Department cannot provide funds for employing a lawyer, but is willing to contact your family or friends on your behalf, to request their financial assistance.

Attorney fees are regulated by a state-approved schedule of fees. The attorney will adhere to these tariffs if the retainer fee has not been specially discussed. In cases of complicated and time-consuming proceedings (for example, major offenses or crimes), the attorney, in order to cover excess time spent beyond normal services, will suggest an individual contract concerning the cost of his services. This contract must be signed by the client in order to be valid and binding. The attorney usually will request a down payment from his client at the beginning of the proceedings, and will account for it at their termination. Once you have signed a power of attorney, you are obligated to pay your lawyer's bill for services rendered to date, even if you change attorneys. You should know that the lawyer may charge for additional services that are not related to your criminal case, as well as frequent and lengthy telephone conversations with your relatives/friends.

Selection of Defense Attorneys

Private Attorney (Wahlverteidiger)

According to article 138 of the German Penal Code the defense attorney must either be licensed to practice before German courts or be a law professor at a German university.

Retaining a criminal defense attorney is mandatory in the following cases

- If the initial trial will be held at the Landgericht (Regional Court) or Oberlandesgericht (Higher Regional Court);
- if the accused is charged with a felony (Verbrechen),
- if the proceedings may result in withdrawal of a professional license;
- if pre-trial detention is being enforced;
- if an expert opinion must be prepared regarding the mental condition of the accused, which might lead to the accused's admission to a mental institution;
- if the court orders the prisoner's admission to a mental or medical treatment facility; or
- if a previously appointed defense attorney is dismissed from the proceedings by a decision of the court.

In other cases not specified above, at the request of the accused or automatically, the court will appoint a defense attorney if the severity of the offense or the legal complexities involved make it appear warranted that legal assistance to the accused is required [in a legal sense], or if it is otherwise obvious that the accused is not capable of handling his own defense.

Court-appointed Attorney (Pflichtverteidiger)

A prisoner in pre-trial detention can either hire a private attorney or receive a court appointed attorney. A German court-appointed attorney is not the same as an American 'public defender'. Any private attorney can be appointed as a public defender. Therefore, you may choose an attorney and, if the attorney agrees to defend you on a court appointment basis, you should give his name to the judge. If you do not choose an attorney, the court may appoint an attorney of its choice.

If you need an interpreter to communicate with your attorney, the attorney should apply for one. The costs will be borne by the German government.

If you are convicted and sentenced, the Justizkasse (billing department of the German Department of Justice) will, at the end of the entire proceeding, send a notice to you to pay for all costs incurred, e.g. court costs, costs for the interpreter, the witnesses, translations, and also for the court-appointed attorney.

For incarcerated U.S. citizens:

☞ Please see the booklet entitled "Information for U.S. Citizens Imprisoned in Germany" for more details. This Handbook contains further information about selecting legal counsel, private attorneys and court-appointed attorneys.
